

Please do not implement anything that reduces the effect of the current Indiana Telephone Privacy Law. I would support your implementing a minimum privacy standard so that everyone could benefit from a decrease in untimely, distracting, unwanted and often automated telemarketing calls but please do not force states with stricter protections to relax them! I used to hate answering at least one to two calls every evening that were annoying and unwanted. Now I don't need caller ID because I can confidently answer the phone when it rings knowing it is likely a call I want to receive. Indiana's telephone privacy law has been the best thing I can recall my state government doing to help improve my daily life.

Thanks for your consideration of my comments.
Sincerely yours,
